Position Description: Dr. Rajaram’s research laboratory at the Department of MI&I, 7th floor of Biomedical research Tower, The Ohio State University Institute has one part-time job opening for a student interested in science and understand the role of microRNAs and HSF1 on cardiac dysfunction during bacterial and viral infection. The selected student will assist post docs in the laboratory in organizing. Previous research experience and interest for laboratory research is a must. The students will volunteer for the first year, if they do well, they will get salary starting the next year at $8 per hour. If you are interested in being considered send your query and your resume to Dr. Murugesan Rajaram by email Murugesan.Rajaram@osumc.edu. No phone calls please.

Position Details: First and second year biology and biomedical majors are encouraged to apply. Basic microbiology and immunology lab experience like Autoclaving, buffer preparation, western blotting, etc. are needed. The student may work for academic credit, voluntary experience or work-study experience. The student is expected work approximately 10 hours a week.

To apply: Send a CV/resume via email to murugesan.rajaram@osumc.edu.